

I am angered by the proposed actions of Sinclair Broadcasting to use free public airways to instruct affiliate stations to pre-empt their regular programming to air "Stolen Honor," an anti-Kerry production. I would be less bothered if they agreed to air "Upriver," a pro-Kerry (note that it is not anti-Bush) documentary, immediately or at least soon after.

Sinclair's actions are a violation of the law to use the air waves in a responsible and fair manner to the benefit of an informed citizenry. To run what is tantamount to a paid political announcement this close to the election is both biased and harmful. It is an example of Big Media suffocating journalism and democracy itself.
